

"I have known Reverend Debbie Marks for forty years and find her to be not only a deeply caring and giving person but extremely intelligent, competent and capable in any task set before. Being a minister is the perfect choice for her as she brings to the position all the qualities necessary for someone who takes care of our spiritual development and well-being.

Her optimism and sense of humor is contagious and her integrity is impeccable. I don't believe in all the years I've know her that I've heard one negative word from her about anyone else. I cherish her friendship and highly recommend her as the minister of any church."

-Margie McKinnon, author, founder of The Lamplighers, a worldwide support group that aids those who were sexually abused as children